

IRISH GIFT IDEAS

BRIDGET'S - AN IRISH TRADITION

88 West Main Street, Norton

The mother-daughter duo of Bridget Daly and Lorraine Ryan has been running this popular Irish gift shop south of Boston since 1987. Specializing in authentic hand-made Irish clothing such as sweaters, caps and shawls, the shop also sells Celtic jewelry and imported sweets and teas from Ireland, perfect gifts for seasonal holidays and special occasions.

bit.ly/BridgetsAnIrishTrad

AISLING GALLERY & FRAMING

229 Lincoln Street (Route 3A), Hingham

Aisling Gallery is the go-to spot for South Shore art, featuring artists such as Vincent Crotty, Christy Peterson, Mary O'Brien, Kathleen Sheehan and Sheila Connor. Started in 1989 by Maureen Connolly of Co. Kerry and husband John Connolly of Dorchester, Aisling is an inviting salon for music and literary readings too.

facebook.com/aislinggallery

THE MUSEUM STORE AT JFK LIBRARY

Columbia Point, Boston

The Museum Store at JFK Library is headquarters for commemorative gifts relating to President John F. Kennedy, with everything from books, calendars and tote bags to coffee mugs, water bottles, flasks and those famous JFK Saratoga sunglasses. The JFK Store's Irish Collection evokes JFK's 1963 visit to Ireland, and also includes JFK's Air Force One bomber jacket.

store.jfklibrary.org

SEAMUS LANGAN, VICTORY OF THE CELTS

Boston-based Irish musician, singer and composer Seamus Langan of Ballyshannon, Co. Donegal, is releasing a new album this summer that includes a number of original compositions and favorite songs. A featured song on the album is Langan's composition 'Victory of the Celts,' based around a medieval Irish fictional battle and the world-famous Boston Celtics basketball team. Langan, whose stage name is Slim Dragon, plays bass with popular local band Devri, and he does solo gigs around town at the Black Rose, Mr. Dooley's and The Dubliner in Boston and at Paddy Barry's pub in Quincy.

facebook.com/slim.langan.3

ÁINE MINOGUE, THE ALTAR OF DAWN

Irish harpist Áine Minogue released a new single this year called 'The Altar of Dawn,' which is available on all streaming and downloading services. Originally from Borriskane, Co. Tipperary, the award-winning harpist, singer, arranger and composer is a popular performer across New England, specializing in Celtic, world, folk, spiritual and new age music. With more than a dozen solo recordings on several labels including RCA Victor/BMG, Áine was also nominated for FIMA awards for her work as a record producer. Her TV production work on "A Winter's Journey" earned her a New England EMMY® nomination.

aineminogue.com/new-single-2-17-2024