

We Remember JFK Jr.'

EXHIBIT OPENS IN HYANNIS

A poignant exhibit entitled “We Remember John F. Kennedy, Jr.” is on display at the JFK Museum in Hyannis, Cape Cod now through December 2024.

It features President Kennedy’s beloved son John Jr. in an array of extraordinary images of John Jr. alone, or with his father, mother, sister, and wife. Arranged thematically, the exhibit uses video, photos, quotes, text, and artifacts to lovingly portray John F. Kennedy Jr. who, like his father, had every gift but length of years.

Born two weeks after JFK was elected President of the United States, John F. Kennedy Jr. grew up in the spotlight. Whether it was at Hyannis Port, at the White House during his father’s presidency or years later in Manhattan, JFK Jr. captivated the world.

Along with his wife Carolyn Bessette-Kennedy and her sister Lauren, JFK Jr. died in a plane crash off Martha’s Vineyard on July 16, 1999, on the way to a cousin’s wedding at the Kennedy Compound on Cape Cod. He was 38 years old.

As his uncle Ted Kennedy said at his funeral “From the first day of his life, John seemed to belong not only to our family, but to the American Family.”

Wendy K. Northcross, executive director at John F. Kennedy Hyannis Museum Foundation, said, “John also belonged to the Cape Cod family. It was here that he enchanted us as a little boy and later beguiled us as an adult visiting the family home in Hyannis Port. He felt comfortable walking down Main Street, Hyannis and sometimes visited us here at the John F. Kennedy Hyannis Museum.”

Other exhibits at the JFK Museum this year include “Presidential Summers: The Kennedys on Cape Cod,” “Robert F. Kennedy: Ripple of Hope,” and “John F. Kennedy’s Rocking Chair.”

Visitors can also attend author readings at the museum and take a stroll on the Kennedy Legacy Trail Walk around Hyannis through summer and fall. The museum is open year-round.
